

SENATOR SMOOT NOW AMONG THE LEADERS

"Knock" by Democratic Periodical
Regarded as "Boost" by Friends of Utah Statesman.

(Special to The Herald-Republican.)
Washington, D. C., April 4.—Some times a "knock" is a "boost," and this is the case with a cartoon published in Puck of March 30. The cartoon represents President Taft as a hen sitting upon a nest full of eggs, labeled "Reform Measures." Steadily approaching the nest are several weasels with human heads and they are labeled Adair, Smoot, Cannon and Baileigh. The point of the cartoon is that the reform measures that President Taft is trying to get enacted into law are threatened by these statesmen. As Puck represents the Democratic view of public questions, its comments, pictorially or otherwise, are not to be taken seriously. But the cartooning of Senator Smoot among the leaders of Congress is a compliment to the Utah senator which his friends appreciate and it shows the position of prominence to which he has attained. Senator Smoot this evening dined at the White House with other members of the Senate and House committees on public lands who were the President's guests and Secretary Baileigh and the director of the geological survey.

A bill was introduced in the Senate today by Senator Smoot to correct the military record of Joseph B. Forbes of American Fork.

The secretary of the interior is asking for proposals for furnishing about 10,000 barrels of Portland cement for use in the construction of the Strawberry tunnel, Strawberry valley irrigation project, Utah.

SUGAR COMPANY NOT GUILTY OF CONTEMPT

Certain Specified Books, However,
Must be Turned Over to Grand Jury.

Washington, April 4.—United States Judge Lacombe today refused to punish the American Sugar Refining company for contempt of court. The government had asked that the corporation be declared in contempt for refusing to produce its books before the grand jury investigating the sugar underweighing frauds, in response to a subpoena directed to the company, served upon its secretary, Charles R. Heike. Heike refused to produce the books unless sworn before the grand jury.

The government, believing that ground for a claim of immunity might thus be established, declined to put him under oath, and the grand jury consequently did not obtain possession of the books. Judge Lacombe said he regarded the subpoena as far too sweeping to be reasonable. A second subpoena, however, which was served on the president and resident agent of the company and restricted to specified books, was upheld by the court, which denied the application of the company's counsel to set it aside.

Judge Lacombe in his opinion did not uphold the contention of the sugar company that it could not be subpoenaed as a corporation. In his opinion Judge Lacombe said:

"No doubt this is a wholly novel practice, but it seems to be a logical outcome of the division between the corporation and the individual pointed out in the American tobacco case and Hale versus Hankel, and the alleged difficulties in such practice are theoretical rather than practical."

The company might select its own messenger to produce documents wanted by a grand jury, the court thought, and such messenger would not have to be an individual who might be incriminated by the documentary evidence he carried with him. The court declared a corporation could not refuse to produce the books on the ground that it might incriminate itself.

Thirty Teams Working in Highland Park

THE last day Kimball & Richards' photographer visited Highland Park addition there were fifty-six horses at work improving the tract. The half-ton shown herewith shows the twenty-eight teams lined up on Dearborn street, just to have their pictures taken.

No doubt the horses welcomed the moment's rest and diversion, for they have been kept pretty busy of late fitting the tract up so that the purchasers of lots in Highland Park addition will find all the work that is possible done for him in advance.

Dearborn is one of the "alphabetical" cross streets in the addition, and is by no means the most important thoroughfare in the tract. It is, however, as every street in the tract will be, brought to conformity to city grades, and like the other streets, will have cement curbing and cement sidewalks on both sides, and shade trees planted on its boulevards. To the left in the halftone may be distinguished one of the many piles of sand and gravel that dot the addition at present, ready to be turned into handsome walks.

Highland Park lots have the additional advantages, most of them, of resting on an alley in the rear, as well as on an improved street in front. Application for a six-inch water main into the tract has already been recommended granted by the city council water-works committee.

These are only a few of the improvements which go with lots in Highland Park addition. There are many other advantages which Kimball & Richards will be glad to point out and to show to intending purchasers of city property, or which will be apparent to you if you visit the tract on your own account. The property is not far from the Sugar House business district and street car line, and the firm has an office on the tract. You may get the information you want there or at the offices of
